

2016 Fall Writing Call: The Studio Visit

Our writing call for this fall is the studio visit. What is the conversation about art in Kansas City? Are your peers making interesting work? Get a “beer with a painter” Tell us about what artists around you are making. You may use this form as a structure to build your piece or experiment with your own format. All published writings will receive your choice of a $30 honorarium (Thanks Rocket Grants!) or a 6 month ad share. Remember the mission of Informality is to document the conversation about art in Kansas City and publish writing that is informal and informative.

The Set Up:

Before starting the interview use this list of questions to setup the environment for your reader

- What are they doing?
- What does the space look like?
- How do you imagine it existing outside the studio?
- Where would you like to see it go?

The Visit:

Use this line of questioning as a template - feel free to deviate and allow the conversation to go where it may.

- Why are you making what you're making?
- What questions are you asking?
- What are you listening to/reading/or watching? Is that feeding into your work at all?
- Are there different bodies of work being made at the same time? Are they having a similar conversation?
- What do you anticipate the audience perceiving in regards to this work?
- Why is your particular medium specific for what you are doing?

Here are some examples of different approaches:
